TAKEN BY THE AFRIDIS.

Fort Maude in the Khyber Pass, Captured After Hard Fighting.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—An official despatch today from Simla announces that Fort Maude, in the Khyber Pass, has been captured by the Afridis after desperate fighting. The garrison, which was composed of native tevies known as the Khyber Rifles, retired with the loss of three men. The Afridis afterwards burned the fort. The fate of Fort Ali-Musjid, which was simultaneously attacked by the Afridis, is not known.

The British officer commanding at Jamrud moved a battery of artillery, escorted by the Fourth dragoons, yesterday to the mouth of the Khyber Pass and shelled the enemy at a range of 3,200 yards. The Afridis retired, but the battery returned to Jamrud, the officer in command deeming it inadvisable to enter the pass. General Elles will begin a concerted movement against the insurgent tribesmen today.

Sikhs Incensed by the Burning of Their Sacred Books.

BOMBAY, Aug. 24.—The report that when the Mohmunds attacked Fort Shakbidder they burned all the sacred books of the Sikh temple there has excited the greatest indignation among the Sikhs throughout the province and has greatly incensed the Sikh troops on the frontier.

The plague is increasing at Poonah.

The Bombay Gazette announces that three of the principal chiefs of Beluchistan, Sirdars Mohrattawhan, Ghomesbakhis and Yarmshomed, were arrested on the arrival of the Mushkaf Bolan mail train, upon which they had been induced to go to Quetta to meet an agent of the governor general who had arrived there by special train shortly before. Sirdar Ghomesbakhis is a son-in-law of Sirdar Sir Arad Khan, one of the most loyal chiefs of Beluchistan. All three of the Sirdar prisoners belong to the Sarawan division of Beluchistan and are suspected of intriguing against the government. They are known to have been disaffected for some time past. The arrests have caused a great sensation among the Mahomedans and further important developments are expected.

Carried Lumber for the Costa Rica Railway.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Atlas line steamer Adirondack, Captain Hanson, which arrived this morning from Kingston and Port Limon, reports that schooner Mercedita of Boston arrived from New York at the latter port August 16, after a passage of sixty-four days. The Mercedita had a cargo of lumber for the Costa Rica railway.

Increase in the Price of Bread in France.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The Figaro, discussing the increase in the price of bread in France, says today: "The political side of the question dominates the economic side. There are two possible solutions; the state to fix a maximum price for bread, or the government to reduce the customs duties." Continuing, the Figaro warns Premier Meline that it is inadmissable for him to allow himself to be entitled the "dear-bread minister."

TURKEY'S LATEST PROPOSITION.

To Occupy Volo and Larissa Until the War Indemnity is Paid.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 24.—The Turkish government now proposes that the sultan's troops shall occupy Volo and Larissa and the country in the rear of those places until the Greek war indemnity is paid, immediately withdrawing the troops south of this line on the signing of the treaty of peace. The Marquis of Salisbury, however, maintains his opposition to the Turkish occupation of the towns mentioned, and especially of Larissa.

Gold Mining in New York.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 24.—A company of Saratogians have commenced the practical mining of gold-bearing quartz on the Morris farm in the town of Greenfield, five miles from this place. The quartz, according to assay office reports, nets from $3 to $65 per ton.

A LANDMARK IN HISTORY.

Faure's Welcome to Russia Proof of the Important Place of France.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—All the newspapers except the Socialist organs agree in declaring that the Cronstadt demonstration is a landmark in the history of France and Russia as well as other nations, furnishing, as it does, incontestable proof of the important position France has regained in the world. A despatch to the Journal from St. Petersburg says that the czar's decision to meet President Faure at Cronstadt was made against enormous protests on the part of the German party.

The despatch adds that the officers of the French squadron at Cronstadt were entertained yesterday by their Russian colleagues. Numerous decorations will be bestowed on the visiting Frenchmen, including a medal to every sailor. The officers and sailors of cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, which was compelled to return to Dunkirk owing to her machinery being disabled, will receive the same presents as if they had been able to participate in the festivities.

Granite Iron Ware.

Housekeepers have long since learned the virtue of this ware; light, strong, durable, it can be used for any and all cooking purposes. There are two kinds, though, firsts and seconds. Beware of seconds. The firsts are free from all poisonous acids and do not burn out through flaws in the coating and the price is scarcely more than for tinware.

STILL COMING BY THOUSANDS.

Today's Program of the Grand Army Veterans at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Another beautiful day has dawned upon the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic. Crowds today were still pouring in. All night long trains were arriving at intervals, and this morning all was bustle and confusion. Thousands were gathered around the different railroad stations and as early as 6 o'clock the principal streets were filled with jostling crowds.

The features of the day were to be the arrival of President McKinley at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the banquet tendered him by Columbia post of Chicago, and the parade of Naval Veterans and the ex-prisoners of war in the evening. It was arranged that the President should be met by the reception committee and escorted by mounted police, two hundred soldiers of the regular army and local and visiting posts of the Grand Army to the Niagara Hotel, where he will stay while here. It was expected that Governor Black of New York would accompany the President.

The program for the day also included a meeting of army nurses; reunions of the First, Second, Third, Fifth, Tenth and Twenty-Fourth corps; reunion of Loyal Homeworkers; convention and campfire of National Veterans; Grand Army bicycle road race; an illuminated bike parade; campfire of ex-prisoners of war, and numerous receptions tendered to and by the ladies of the various auxiliary bodies. During the day re-unions were held by organizations representing nearly every section of the country.

The different railroads centering here have given estimates of the number of passengers landed in Buffalo during the twenty-four hours ending at midnight. The grand total footed up one hundred and forty-five thousand. All the railroads reported arrivals expected for today at least equalling those of yesterday, and quite a few more specials early tomorrow morning, and it is estimated that there will be at least 150,000 more arrivals before the big parade tomorrow, which will bring the grand total of encampment visitors up to the 350,000 expected.

President and Party on the Way.

UTICA, N. Y.—The Presidential train, en route to Buffalo, arrived here at 10:10, stopping to take on General Terry, of Governor Black's staff. The trip from Lake Champlain to Albany under the charge of the Delaware & Hudson officials was uneventful. At Troy a Wagner car containing Governor Black and his party was attached to the train. At Albany General Manager Tourey and Superintendent Harrington took charge of the train on behalf of the New York Central. Famous engine 999 of the Empire State express drew the train and the same hide called for arrival at 3 p. m.

Dr. Depew's car, which was occupied by the Presidential party, was beautifully appointed with cut flowers. Breakfast was served as the train passed Little Falls and then Governor Black and President McKinley had a chat.

RAHWAY DELUGED.

Water Four and Five Feet Deep in the Heart of the City.

RAHWAY, N. J., Aug. 24.—A deluge of rain that took on the dimensions of a cloudburst struck this city a little before 3 o'clock this morning and resulted in the heaviest rainfall in this vicinity for some years. The Rahway river rose eight feet higher than the high water mark and was four feet higher than when the big storm occurred four weeks ago. The lowlands for a long distance were flooded and considerable damage done. Boats were used to cross the streets and the water is four and five feet deep in the heart of the city. People living near the river were taken out of the second floors of their homes by means of boats.

The water from the river backed up in Irvington and Hamilton streets to a depth of fifteen feet.

The La Page spoke works are not in operation today on account of the flood.

At Atwood bridge, four miles from here, the Salmander brick works were flooded. The water undermined the large kiln, permitting the fire in the kiln to get against the side of the building and set it on fire. The factory was burned to the ground and it is estimated that the damage will be about $50,000. A large number of workmen are thrown out of employment.

Drowned in Marblehead Harbor.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 24.—Augustus Worth, a native of Christiania, Norway, and one of the crew of yacht Olga, was drowned in the harbor here at an early hour this morning. In company with Louis Henson of yacht Anatuck they started to row in a twelve-foot dory from Marblehead neck to one of the yachts in the harbor. When about five hundred yards from the shore the boat upset. Henson clung to the bottom of the craft but Worth began swimming for the shore. When about half way he gave one cry and sank. He was twenty-eight years old and unmarried.

Death Sentences Commuted to Life Servitude.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 24.—An imperial irade has been issued commuting the sentences of death, imposed upon those who were engaged in the massacre of the members of the Greek church at Tokat in March last, to penal servitude for life in Tripoli and Barbary.

Proposition to Raise the Monitor.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 24.—T. W. Keyes, one of the Wisconsin delegates to the national Grand Army encampment at Buffalo, will make a proposition for united action to urge the government to raise the ironclad Monitor, which defeated the rebel ram Merrimac during the war. The Monitor foundered off Cape Hatteras December 31, 1862. It is thought that it will require the expenditure of $50,000 to raise the vessel.

Star Pointer and Joe Patchen Matched.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 24.—The state board of agriculture yesterday announced that negotiations have been closed with the owners of Star Pointer and Joe Patchen for a match race to take place here October 1 on "Springfield day" of the state fair. A purse of $5,000 will be given the winner. The race will be two out of three heats.

OPENED TAMELY.

Bull Fever on the New York Wheat Market Has Apparently Subsided.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Wheat had a comparatively tame opening today. December dropped a cent a bushel on first sales and then practically recovered. The crowd had apparently lost its bull fever and was content to accept profits on old purchases or else scalp the market for a reaction. The cable news was interesting only because Liverpool failed to match our decline of yesterday. Paris markets were of bearish significance, showing declines on both wheat and flour. Corn opened ½ lower on the basis of 38 for December. The first half hour range on December wheat was from 100⅜ @ near the opening to 101 1-4.

NEWPORT BICYCLISTS AT WESTPORT.

In the ten-mile bicycle road race at Westport Saturday William Jurgens and W. S. Scott of this city and A. Browse of Portsmouth contested. Jurgens was allowed 2 minutes and 30 seconds; Browse, two minutes, and fifteen seconds, and Scott, who was one of the two colored men in the race, 20 seconds. C. Stuart Bolting of Providence was scratch man. Scott punctured his rear tire and had to retire. There were eighty-one starters, and about two hundred and forty falls were encountered. Many of the racers were cut up, and some were more seriously injured by a spill at the finish.

This Morning's News.

QUEST OF THE CZAR.

Russia's Royal Welcome to President Faure of France.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 23.—From early this morning there has been a scene of great animation here and a steady flow of people towards the quays, where they embarked on profusely decorated steamers in order to meet President Faure at Cronstadt.

The final preparations at Peterhof were completed this morning. The magnificent park between the palace and the sea was gloriously decorated with the flags of Russia and France. At 9 o'clock a semaphore message announced that the French warship was thirteen miles distant and a Cossack was immediately despatched at a gallop to convey the news to the Czar at Peterhof palace. A similar despatch soon followed from Cronstadt and then the Czar emerged from the palace, entered a carriage and drove to the landing stage. His Majesty wore the uniform of a captain in the Russian navy, with the ribbon of the Legion of Honor on his breast.

The Czar conversed in French with various personages for a few minutes and then the imperial party embarked on board the Alexandria. The Grand Duke Alexis, the High Admiral of Russia and uncle of the Czar, on board the Histrecia, preceded ahead. The Grand Duke Alexis went alongside the Pothua, on board of which was the French president, and welcomed the latter to Russia in the name of the Czar.

A large fleet of pleasure steamers lined by that time assembled in the roads, and the most intense enthusiasm was manifested when the Grand Duke Alexis and President Faure left the Pothua and proceeded to the Alexandria. The Czar awaited the President at the top of the Alexandria's gangway, and the moment M. Faure set foot on the deck of the imperial yacht warm embraces were exchanged between the Czar and the President, which were the signal for a storm of cheering, the waving of handkerchiefs and other marks of popular and enthusiastic delight.

When the Alexandria arrived at the landing stage the high court dignitaries were again grouped to receive the Czar and his guest. President Faure was dressed in a frock coat and wore the insignia of the grand collar of the Order of St. Andrew, which decoration was presented to him by the Czar in June, 1896. Out of compliment to his guest the Czar also wore the same order. When the imperial yacht was safely moored alongside the jetty, the French President was the first to land and the band of the Imperial guard struck up the "Marseillaise." The Czar followed M. Faure ashore and immediately presented his guest to the Grand Dukes Vladimir, Cyril, Boris, Andrew, Paul, Constantine, Nicholas, Peter, Michael, George and Sergius. As M. Faure drove through the street the people greeted him with loud cheers and cries of "Vive la France!" The route to the palace was lined with troops and behind the soldiers marched enthusiastic crowds of people who were frantic in their acclamations.

Upon arriving at the Peterhof palace the Czar presented President Faure to the various court officials and then re-entering the victoria His Majesty drove alone to the Alexandria palace, the residence of the Czarina. A few minutes later President Faure emerged from the Peterhof palace, accompanied by General Bildering, and drove to the Alexandria palace in order to offer his homage to the Czarina. The Empress and Emperor received M. Faure in the Louis XV. salon, which is in that part of the palace called "The Farm." The Czarina, who wore a lovely costume of pearl grey silk, asked M. Faure about his voyage and referred to her own pleasurable visit with the Czar to Paris last October.

A private luncheon followed in the white hall of the Peterhof palace, which was beautifully decorated. M. Faure sat on the right of Emperor Nicholas. There were thirty-four guests in the company, including M. Hanotaux, the French foreign minister.

A grand banquet was given tonight at the Peterhof palace. The guests were afterwards entertained with a grand spectacle in the pavilion Nicholas I. on Olga island.

NO AGREEMENT.

Miners and Operators Will Meet Again Today.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 23.—The conference of operators and miners adjourned shortly before 11 o'clock without reaching an agreement. Another conference will be held tomorrow morning, when both sides hope to effect a settlement. H. W. Schleaberg, a member of the operators' committee, stated that the question of settlement in other states had been eliminated and that the conference was dealing entirely with the rate in the Pittsburg district. National President Ratchford said that the men are still firm for the sixty-nine cent rate, and District President Jordan said that a settlement in ten minutes after the opening of the conference was not impossible.

THE SEAL INVESTIGATION.

Commissioner Jordan's Report to the State Department.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Assistant Secretary Howell today received the following telegram from Seal Commissioner Davis S. Jordan at Seattle, Wash.:

"Investigation successfully completed. Shrinkage of breeding rookeries fifteen per cent since last year; of killable males thirty-three per cent. Latter due to starvation of pups from pelagic sealing in 1896. Former due to last year's destruction of females, plus starvation of pups in 1896. Conclusions of last year completely vindicated in all important regards."

AFRIDIS IN ARMS.

Powerful Frontier Tribe Joins the Indian Rebels.

SIMLA, Aug. 23.—A large force of Afridis has just been reported to be advancing down the Khyber pass, and the so-called Mad Mullah, or fanatical priest, who is inciting the natives of that territory against the British, is said to have collected the Mohmands for an attack upon Michni and Shabkadar.

The Royal Irish regiment and a representative native infantry, with a battery of mounted artillery, have been ordered to Kohat. Fighting is reported to be proceeding at Ali-Musjed between the Afridis and the British garrison at that place.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—An official despatch from Peshawir announced that the Afridis attacked Ali-Musjed this morning, and adds that they were attacking Fort Maude at latest accounts. The enemy's line is a mile and a half long. Another body of Afridis, the despatch continues, is moving toward Kadam. All the Afridis are said to have joined in the uprising.

The news contained in this official despatch is most important, probably meaning a protracted campaign and desperate fighting. A general revolt of the Afridis was what the Indian government feared the most, and it now seems to have taken place.

PESHAWIR, Aug. 23.—The Afridis began their attack upon Ali-Musjed at 8 o'clock this morning and upon Fort Maude shortly after 10. Both are garrisoned with Khyber native levies. The enemy is also entering Khyber pass. General Westmacott has sent artillery to the mouth of the pass to shell them if possible. The artillery was accompanied by the 9th Bengal Lancers.

SIMLA, Aug. 23.—There are persistent rumors here tonight that Fort Ali-Musjed and Fort Maude, which were attacked this morning by the Afridis, have fallen into the hands of the enemy, but there is no official confirmation of these reports.

FOOD SCARCE IN CUBA.

Spaniards Looting Farms and Stealing Cattle.

HAVANA, via Key West, Aug. 23.—The sanitary situation is awful among the Spaniards. In the military hospitals in Havana the scarcity of food makes the situation worse. The troops, following the orders of Weyler, plunder the farms in the province and steal the cattle which were reserved to supply the city. They bring the cattle here to feed the sick Spanish soldiers in the hospitals, and report the animals as captured from the insurgents.

At Pinar del Rio the condition of the pacificos is desperate. At Guane, in that province, the Cuban families are feeding on dogs. Not even vegetables can be obtained. Reports from Matanzas also reveal the terrible misery of the country people. The war is waging fiercely in Puerto Principe, and there are reports of the successful landing of an insurgent expedition in Pinar del Rio.

FOR TAN AND FRECKLES.

Though many may be ever so careful in these sunshiny days to protect their fair faces from the sun's rays, they will inevitably be more or less disfigured by tan and freckles. These are not counted a disfigurement at the seashore or in the wooded retreats where health and vigor are sought, but on the return of the sojourners to the city's haunts of gayety it is natural they should be looked upon as undesirable, and means sought to get rid of them. In preparation for the campaign against the tawny freckle, as well as against the less enduring disfigurements of the warm season, loads of ammunition in the form of bleaches and lotions and whitewashy mixtures are carried to mountain and seashore and country each year. There are, however, many women and girls who would rather endure the afflictions that beset the complexion from exposure than make a sort of salad for the countenance at night by the application of oils and vinegars, and, as they consider them, kindred unclean mixtures.

But really there is no reason to challenge the sun to do its worst to one's milky skin when there is a means of preventing the unsightly results—a means so simple and cleanly and reliable that not one of the fair sex who wishes to preserve her complexion need hesitate to make use of it. And then the receipt possesses the saving grace of arousing no trembling uncertainty as to the poisonous character of the things that enter into the composition of the wash. The preparation of the beneficial wash is simplicity itself, and the ingredients purchasable anywhere at very reasonable cost. If half a pound of olive oil soap (pure castile) be chipped fine and dissolved in one gallon of boiling water, then, after it has cooled, one quart of the best alcohol and one ounce of oil of rosemary be stirred in, the result will be as admirable an improver of the complexion and protection against the sun's blemishes as any woman can desire. And not only in summer, but at all times can it be used with benefit. The best method of applying is to moisten a wash cloth with the liquid after the customary bath, and to rub thoroughly over the face and hands and any parts that need the treatment.

Another wash which is said to be excellent for the removal of freckles, may be tried with benefit to some. Dissolve twenty grains of borax and thirty grains of sugar evenly in two tablespoonfuls of artificial lemon juice. Sponge the freckled nose or cheeks freely and frequently with this beauty lotion, and the result will be highly satisfactory. To make the artificial lemon juice, take an ounce of fresh lemon peel and grate it. Let it soak for a week, shaking it several times a day. Filter it through filter paper when the week is ended. Drop a tablespoonful in a glass of water, and you have a refreshing healthful drink, as well as face lotion. Tincture of orange peel may be made the same way, dropping six drops of essential oil of orange peel in a half ounce of the tincture, and adding to a solution of one ounce of citric acid dropped in a quart of water. This also makes a refreshing drink.

HAWAII AND THE UNITED STATES.

Such a country with such a population will, if we annex Hawaii, become an active part of our political system. It will in the course of time inevitably be admitted as a state of the Union, on an equal footing with the other states. The United States will have to guarantee to it a republican form of government. Through its Senators and Representatives and its electoral vote it will, such as it is, exercise power in governing all of us. Is this desirable? It may be said that we have conditions, and that we manage to get along with them. This is to a limited extent true. But how? In the Southern states there was always, since their settlement, at least a strong stock of white people, mostly of what we call Anglo-Saxon blood. And what has been the result? For a long period the colored laboring population was kept in slavery. Slavery caused a bloody civil war, in consequence of which it was abolished. But that did not end the trouble. The negroes, having been emancipated, were endowed with the right of suffrage. Neither did that end the trouble. The trouble only assumed a new form. It is needless to describe how there is in some of the Southern states, on the part of the whites, a constant struggle for ascendency, carried on under the plea of necessity, by means which ill comport with the principles of democratic government. There is a chronic race conflict, breaking out in old or new shapes every day, and nobody can tell what the final consequences will be. What is said here is not inspired by race prejudice, but we have to recognize facts which nobody can deny. All these conditions of difficulty appear in Hawaii in a far more dangerous proportion. Its climate is tropical. Its population of Germanic blood is infinitesimally small; the political ascendancy of it depends enforcedly its white people are preponderantly Portuguese of a low order. Its principal labor cannot possibly be done except by people suited to the tropical climate; that is, not by whites. Government on a truly democratic basis is therefore out of the question. If the outward form of a republic be preserved, it can be only an oligarchy far more pronounced and exclusive than any in our Southern states was, because the proportion of white people will be smaller. There will be, necessarily, the completest attainable subjection of the laboring population to a small minority, and race conflicts without end. This is not the worst of it. Nothing can be more certain than that, when this republic has once cut loose from its conservative traditional policy, and started on the course of adventurous aggrandizement, there will be many more tropical conquests of a similar kind.—[Harper's Weekly.

MRS. WARING.

It is easy to understand the success of Col. Waring, the New York street cleaning commissioner, for he has a true helpmeet who sympathizes with all his endeavors to give this greater city what is any city's crowning glory—clean streets. Mrs. George E. Waring has evidently inspired her husband with courage to fight the good fight against dirt. Her little address the other day to fifteen hundred vacation pupils shows how much womanly oversight has to do with this "housekeeping" of a metropolis, and that the hope of order and cleanliness lies in early teaching these first principles to the young. Mrs. Waring said in her remarks: "At seventeen I began to take lessons in housework, and can now go into the kitchen and cook breakfast for my husband. When the girl is away I like to do all my kitchen work, cooking and kitchen cleaning, too. You should all take pride in keeping your homes neat and clean. Do anything you can to make them bright, and cheerful and happy. It is not money that makes things cheerful and bright in home life. The streets are your playgrounds, and you, as good girls, should try and see that they, too, are kept clean. I often wish when I notice the filthy condition of the streets that I had the arms of a giant with which to clean them." Mrs. Waring was born in Germany. Her father was a school-teacher, and there were numerous brothers and sisters, but he gave both her and them good educations, with the ambition to do well in whatever duty or occupation they were called on to perform.—The Chatterer, in Boston Herald.

In But One Way Can the Smoothness and the purity of good whiskey be arrived at and that is by age. The best is the cheapest since because of evaporation, but little loss is the consumers' gain, for the subtle changes which the incorruptible climate, Nature, brings about cannot be obtained by any scientific or chemical process. The G. H. Eagle Whiskies are given seven years in which to ripen, thus securing their celebrated smoothness and flavor.

PERSONNEL OF THE NAVY.

Plan of Re-organization to be Submitted to Congress.

Details of the proposition under consideration by Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt in regard to the reorganization of the personnel of the navy show that the proposition contemplates the amalgamation of the line and engineer corps, the assignment of a sufficient number of officers to duty as engineer officers, after service with the machinery and on deck; the creation of a general staff, which shall handle all matters relating to war, and the adoption of a plan for regulating the flow of promotion. The older line officers oppose the scheme, on the ground that it would not finally settle the controversy, and the engineers are not heartily in favor of it.

The proposition suggests one course for all the cadets at the naval academy, and requires them to devote especial attention to steam engineering. Upon graduation, all cadets, with the exception of those entering the marine corps and construction corps, shall be commissioned as ensigns in the line and promoted after three years' service. Each line officer is then to spend twelve years at sea. The proposition suggests that he be assigned to duty on deck and at the machinery during the first six years. He may then, if he desires, be permitted to specialize in engineering, and then, at the close of six years more, he will be transferred to the engineer corps.

It is intended that one engineer officer shall be attached to every ship and have full charge of his subordinates and the machinery. Under the direction of the chief engineers, watch duties, connected with repairing and driving machinery, are to be performed by line officers.

Officers of the line and engineer corps who have entered the service during the same year must be promoted at the same rate and to the same ranks. There is to be no increased number of officers, but the engineer corps is to be reduced, not, however, below one hundred. The suggestion is made that a thirty-year retirement clause be included in the proposed legislation, and that a limited number of officers be permitted to take advantage of its provisions. As another aid to promotion, it is suggested that a "reserve list" be provided, to which shall be transferred officers who do not reach command rank at an age when they are effective.

Acting Secretary Roosevelt considers the plan as merely the skeleton of the recommendations which will be submitted to Congress by Secretary Long.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor of Providence, who have been visiting Mrs. Taylor's mother, Mrs. Phebe Goddard of Newport, came to Portsmouth yesterday to spend a few days with Mrs. Joseph Anthony.

Miss Clara Bourne and a friend from Hebronville, Mass., are at the Wilcox House, Stone Bridge road.

Mrs. Edward St. Chase, with her son, returned Monday from a week's visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Bassett of Westport. Mr. Chase went to Westport on his wheel Saturday, returning Monday.

Messrs. Louis R. and B. Archie Chase and William F. Grinnell went to Crescent Park on their wheels Saturday. Mr. Grinnell broke his wheel in a rut and was obliged to return by train.

The Christian Endeavor Society connected with the Christian Church, South Portsmouth, will go to Roger Williams Park tomorrow if pleasant. If stormy Wednesday, they will go Friday. They will leave Bristol Ferry on the 9 o'clock boat.

Mrs. L. A. Popple of Althea cottage, Bristol Ferry, is entertaining Lieutenant George Dary, wife and two sons, Mrs. May Potter, Miss Bessie Thurston, Miss Horton and Miss Alice Dick.

The marriage of Mr. Daniel C. Monro and Miss Hertha Monro, which took place some time since, has just become generally known. They were double cousins.

Walter C. F. Barker, who died at his residence in Warren Sunday afternoon, after a brief illness from malarial fever, aged seventy-seven years, was a native of Portsmouth. He removed to Warren when a boy, where he had since resided, following farming all his life. A widow and eight children survive him.

A VILLAGE IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY NEEDED.

To the Editor of the News:

Why is there not a village improvement society in Newport? There never was a place more in need of such an organization. If the city government is not disposed to keep the streets in order and the sidewalks fit for use, a citizens' association should be formed, to see that this is done, and other abuses controlled.

The Old Mill was once an object of beauty and had its charm in our town. The vines were torn from it—in order to preserve it—but of what use is this preservation without beauty? Japanese ivy should be planted about it, as that will not cause decay. It would last a hundred years, and the mill be a charm instead of a deformity in the small park.

Public spirit should be aroused to stop the abuse of throwing rubbish on the sides of the road. There were three piles of champagne baskets, bottles, tin cans, etc., on Ocean avenue; also on the beautiful rocks at the end of Ledge road. These are happily screened just now by weeds and grasses, but must be visible again in autumn.

At Easton's beach excursionists throw lunch boxes and greasy paper all over the sand dunes and the beach. One dangerous form of this carelessness is the breaking of bottles, and throwing the pieces of glass, just where bathers are entering the water. Many persons have been wounded in this way seriously. A city ordinance should be printed to enforce some law against all such vandalism. There are spots in Newport that are a disgrace to a city of its size.

Attention might well be given to caring for the comfort of the thousands of pedestrians who stumble along Bath road over loose stones nearly as large as cobble-stones. The lower town is well enough cared for, but from the corner of Bellevue avenue and Bath road the way to Easton's beach is all dirt and discomfort. The footways are slippery mud in damp weather, and as rough as a mountain-path when it is dry. Why, at least, was not the concrete pavement continued up the hill from the beach? That is a "Hill of Difficulty" to the tired and hot pedestrian. The cooling influence of a sea bath is soon destroyed by a climb over its stony surface.

The Cliff walk used to be a continuous delight many years ago. Now, if a man escapes with his life from the dangers of the crumbling pathway, and the ricketty platforms at the beginning of the walk, there are many places to be encountered on the way to Bailey's beach which will make him sigh for the days when the dwellers in the cottages were not so rich as to begrudge their poorer fellows the pleasure of a beautiful and refreshing walk along the edges of their lawns. Instead of following the natural undulations of the land, as once he did, he must now climb stone steps, and swelter in the hot reflection of sun from high stone walls, cut off from the southwest breeze, which is one of the delights of a Newport summer day. In these sunken walks, protected by stone walls erected by selfishness and ostentation, the mesquito revels, a thing once unknown along that path. Perhaps it is bred in the damp recesses of the Vanderbilt tunnel, whose muddy floor and dripping walls are a fitting memorial of the fall of man.

When Adam and Eve lived in Paradise, the beasts of the field enjoyed it with them—even Satan himself tasted the delights thereof. So he may now, perhaps, provided he can pay for them, while the natural man and woman for whom beauty was created, as they now pass through this valley of Baca, find it—not make it—a well, and the rain also filleth the pools thereof.

M. G. M.

FOR RECEPTIONS.

For handsome gowns for autumn weddings and receptions, moiré is extremely elegant. Our illustration shows a gown designed for the mother of a bride at a recent wedding. The front of the skirt is of moiré, a pale tint of periwinkle embroidered in steel and jet. The back of the skirt is covered with old English lace. The back of the waist is likewise of the lace, gathered at the belt. In front the lace forms a jacket effect, fitted by one dart. Shawl-shaped revers of white satin are embroidered in steel and jet. The vest is of white chiffon. The sleeves, of the moiré, are cut quite long, extending over the hand with a slight point, finished with a ruffle of lace. Several narrow tucks at the top provide the bouffant effect, which is still the proper style. "Jockeys" of the lace are added.

The bonnet is of pale periwinkle antique velvet and tulle of the same shade. The feather and strings are of black. This combination of tulle and velvet or felt is one of the striking points of the autumn millinery.

AFTER THE STORM.

They think because we write of grief and passion
That all the tempest of a heart is there.
Ah, this is not the heart's nor ocean's fashion:
Wait for the lull, when shores are broad and bare.

Wait till the storm is past, and ocean covers
In vast submission to a fate too strong.
Then on the beach, in shreds of deep-sea
flowers,
We find the shells, the broken shells, of song.

—[Mary McNeil Scott, in September Lippincott's.

"I want some wire netting to keep mosquitoes out of the house," said the Jerseyite.

"Mr. Cumrox's wife entertains very brilliantly," said a young woman. "She is always being spoken of in the newspapers, but her husband is never mentioned."

"There are different kinds of fame," replied Miss Cayenne. "It's true that Mr. Cumrox's name doesn't get in the newspapers, but it is found in more ledgers than that of any other man in the city."—[Washington Star.

FOR FLEAS IN THE HOUSE.

The following is said to be a good way to rid a room of fleas. Wet a sheet, and after wringing it out spread it out on the carpet infested, filling it carefully into the corner of the room. Then go over it with a hot iron, moving and remoistening it from time to time until the entire surface of the carpet is gone over. If thoroughly done the fleas will be thoroughly extirpated. If the fleas come from a dog, fill the dog's hair with dalmatian powder, and keep him outside the house for a day or two. Treat rugs or mats where he has lain the same as the carpets.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements, without special position, $1 a square for the first insertion and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, nonpariel type (or five-sixths of an inch) make a square. Advertisements of five lines or less are taken at about one-half these rates. A discount is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for more than one week, or when both papers are used.

Yearly or Term Advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed but five insertions in a week, and are allowed twenty-five changes a year. Electrotypes will be used without extra charge if solid metal; "wood backs" cannot be used with safety to the press.

Advertisers using both the daily and weekly papers receive a discount on the combined rates and gain the advantage of distinct classes of readers, no person reading both the daily and weekly. The Journal goes among people who read no other local paper.

PRINTING.

The News has six steam presses and has a large and well-appointed job printing office.

MORE PENSIONS.

It would seem at this late day, more than thirty years after the war, that all the heroes of the bloody campaigns in defence of the Union would have been discovered, and so far as possible, rewarded by a grateful country. There has certainly been no disposition to withhold reward from anybody who is or has been worthy of enrollment on the pension list, and as every one knows, there has been and still is a tendency to crowd a good many names onto the roll of honor whose bearers were of exceedingly doubtful fitness for the place.

Having now exhausted about all the available resources the latest proposition is to make an opening for a class of ex-confederates, which, if carried into effect, will so enlarge the field as to make a fresh draft upon the treasury of no mean proportions. But we are inclined to the opinion that there is an element of truth and justice in the movement which will make it acceptable to the general public even if not especially popular.

The case as outlined in the Tribune can be stated in few words: "Under the present construction of the laws, any service in the confederate cause, irrespective of later service for the government, is a bar to pension. Pension Commissioner Evans believes that if a claimant served in any capacity in the confederate service, but later deserted or left its ranks, enlisted in the Union army, served therein and was honorably discharged, it would be an injustice to refuse him a pension. He believes that, having performed honorable service in the Union army, the past hostile service should be overlooked. Assistant Secretary Webster Davis, whose decisions have been in the line of liberal construction of the pension laws, is understood to have similar views. The question has been referred to the President and Secretary Bliss for their approval."

We should say that such ruling by act of Congress or by decision of department officials at the first was very narrow and altogether unjustifiable. The man who errs and then repents and does what he can to make restitution is entitled to consideration and fair treatment in connection with those of his comrades who may not have gone equally far astray. Indeed there are some illustrations to be found in the pages of both sacred and profane history where the returning prodigal sons of humanity have seemed to be favored over such as had been ever faithful. And so if on sober second thought a man, after having been swept into the whirl of secession, found himself in the wrong and came into the Union army, was welcomed to service under the stars and stripes, and fought for the flag of the Union faithfully and well, we should say that he was as fairly entitled to a pension as any other in the ranks. It must have been a narrow prejudice which excluded such at the first, and a doubtful justice that continues to hold him at arms' length ever after.

The only embarrassment in the way is the pace which has been set in the pension business under the present system. The moment the door is opened to this new class every pension shark in the country, and his name is legion, will exhaust his ingenuity in hunting up candidates, not so much in the interest of the veterans as himself, every applicant for a claim will be pressed, as it has been under the present law, so that multitudes will be enrolled, as now, who are not worthy of the distinction but who will be made recipients of popular favor.

We can well imagine the immense bills which will be demanded for back pay, not only by the veterans of the class named, but by their widows, their sisters, their cousins and their aunts. The outlook is certainly formidable, and if there is any hesitancy it is likely to be at this point. But in such a case the fault will be our own and not that of the veterans themselves. Justice should be done though the heavens fall.

HOW A SCIENTIST VIEWS IT.

Sir William Thomson, the famous English physicist, who is on a visit to this country, was asked "What is the recent discovery that has most interested you?" and he replied "The extraction of heat and light from garbage." Unusual interest is being attached to his words, for every city in the country is trying to solve the garbage problem on a scientific basis. In some places new and improved systems of garbage disposal have been adopted, but none of them is giving complete satisfaction.

This is certainly true of Newport, where we send the stuff out to sea, and more or less of it returns to plague the inventors and executors of the plan, which it is but fair to say was adopted in this case as an expedient, and not as supposed finality.

Sir William Thomson, who is familiar with all the improved methods, thinks that the experiment now being tried at Shoreditch is far ahead of the mere crematory idea. This latest plan converts garbage into a fuel, ten tons of which will produce as much steam or light as a ton of coal. If this experiment proves successful, the time will come, he says, when cities can use the latent energy and power in garbage to run motors, electric-light plants and engines.

A WORTHY EXAMPLE.

The Germans are giving technical instruction a new and important turn, and according to reports are making it work to great advantage. It is said that the Oriental seminary in Berlin, since its foundation in 1887, has developed a very useful function in the promotion of foreign trade. It has not only provided competent interpreters for the embassies and consulates of the German empire in the East, and educated candidates for the colonial service, but it has exerted a decided influence upon German business circles by imparting special instruction to young merchants, bankers, and technologists who wish to engage in commercial or industrial enterprises in Asia and Africa. A German consul who has received this kind of training has an immense advantage over consuls that are without it, and one of the most noticeable results of the work of the seminary is seen in the astonishing growth of German industries and exportations of manufactures within a few years.

Perhaps it would be well for our own country to adopt something of this kind. We have certainly sent out not a few incompetent representatives, and some who have hindered rather than advanced the interest of our people, whom they undertook to represent.

ABUSE OF PRISONERS.

Every little while reports come to us of cruelties practised on the inmates of public institutions, and investigations follow. Some of these prove to be false alarms and others tend to justify all the complaints. But nothing in this country has exceeded the revelations of what is permitted in some sections of the South. As is well known, the existence of shocking abuses in the Georgia convict camps is no new thing. The people of Georgia know—they cannot help knowing—that the members of the chain gangs are penned and driven under the lash like cattle. The revolting condition of affairs in these camps has been exposed again and again. The fact that most of the convicts are colored seems to be taken as justification for subjecting them to treatment far worse than that meted out to negroes in slavery days. Georgia's convict system is a blistering disgrace in this age of civilization and the almost universal exercise of the humanities of Christianity.

A PACIFICATOR.

At a meeting of the leaders among the strikers and the representatives of mine owners in the hope of effecting a compromise, Colonel Rend, one of the latter, hailing we believe from Chicago, in response to a proposition outlined by the strikers' representative is reported to have "called Ratchford a villain, a traitor, blackguard and an anarchist. With emphasis he told him that seven anarchists had been hanged in Chicago, and all were better than he; that if he precipitated an insurrection in this country, he would be hanged, and when he was hanged, he (Rend) wanted to pull the rope. Colonel Rend left the conference in a rage." And all this in the interest of peace!

The communication of W. G. K., which appears in another column of the News, will be read with interest. In the main it is in line with what we have long been teaching, that Newport is not half alive to its opportunities and responsibilities in making the city what it should be. It is true that our local government is not doing its full duty in the matters pointed out. The time has gone by when small technicalities should be permitted to stand in the way of better things, some of which are indicated and others, equally important, are not. Instead of organizing a local improvement society it is probably the better way to proceed to make choice of a city government that should do its full duty to both the citizens and the visiting public.

Our government stands a poor chance of getting any cash payments from Spain in compensation, for losses to citizens of America who have been wronged in Cuba. These claims have been made up in due form and presented for consideration, and are met in return by counter claims on the part of the Spanish government against us for violation of the neutrality laws and other minor offences. If both are recognized there may be a small balance in our favor but it is not worth quarreling about.

A poor helpless man was wandering about the streets of New York a day or two since friendless, and, as was supposed, penniless. But when it was found that he had about $33,000 on his person troops of relatives rushed in and claimed to be his heirs. There was a good deal of poor human nature in the performance but as the man is getting well he declares that he is able to take care of himself, and will have none of this nonsense.

The shower of this morning did some of the Mill streets considerable damage. They had not yet had time to recover from the disabilities incurred a week ago and so fell easy victims to the fresh exposure.

When the Czar of Russia and the President of France meet and shake hands, extremes are surely coming together. And that is just what they are doing at the present time, up in the cold and chilly North.

The name of the man who insisted upon disturbing the Sabbath rest of the President while on his mission as an office broker with Thomas C. Platt as his client is Lemuel Eli Quigg. Good enough.

The Springfield Republican hints that there is a suspicion abroad that the striking coal miners have shown more respect for the law than the judges who have displaced it by their injunctions.

Business continues to improve in all parts of the country except in the soft coal diggings where the workingmen ask to share in the new prosperity.

STEVENSON'S PRAYER.

The following prayer, composed by Robert Louis Stevenson, and read to his family only the night before his death, is thought by the London Spectator to be, in its patriarchal simplicity, more impressive than almost anything else which that man of genius produced:

"We beseech thee, Lord, to behold us with favor, folk of many families and nations, gathered together in the peace of this roof—weak men and women, subsisting under the covert of thy patience. Be patient still; suffer us yet awhile longer—with our broken promises of good, with our idle endeavors against evil—suffer us awhile longer to endure, and (if it may be) help us to do better. Bless to us our extraordinary mercies. If the day come when these must be taken, have us play the man under affliction. Be with our friends; be with ourselves. Go with each of us to rest. If any wake, temper to them the dark hours of watching; and when the day returns to us, our sun and comforter, call us with morning faces and eager to be happy, if happiness shall be our portion; and if the day be marked to sorrow, strong to endure it. We thank Thee and praise Thee; and in the words of Him to whom this day is sacred, close our oblation."

THEIR SAFETY.

A Brooklyn building and loan association official says: "When asking some of my friends and acquaintances to join a building and loan association I have been met with the question: 'Are they safe?' Nobody seems to ask a question about savings banks, and yet more savings banks have been broken by careless and unscrupulous officers than have local co-operative building and loan associations. A dozen men will get together and obtain a charter to do business as a savings bank, hang out a shingle and people will take their money there, intrusting their savings to men of whom they know little or nothing. If the same dozen men obtained a charter to do business as a co-operative building and loan association, the people would stay away and the enterprise be a failure, unless the members of the board of management went out and dragged in their friends. Of course, the reason for the difference is the ignorance of the public. If they could be made to understand that the co-operative institutions were the safest savings banks, and that all the profits earned were returned to the members, they would all flock to the building and loan associations. The necessity of the day is to inform the public of the benefits to be derived in becoming a members of a local building and loan association."

DRESS SUITS IN THE MOUNTAINS.

The Listener would like to write an essay on the desecration of the mountains by evening dress. There are hotels in the White mountains, which are otherwise quite delightful places, where men and women are actually seen in evening clothes every night, and where a stray guest who has not his "dress-suit" with him feels wofully out of place—very much, perhaps, as Josh Whitcomb does when he is slipping off the velvet easy-chair. Now if there is any place where formality is a crime, it is the mountains. It gives one much the same impression that the railroad train winding along the face of the mountain does, or the viaduct crossing the gorge; but as we have had to have the railroads through the mountains, no doubt so we must have evening-dress there. But one may reserve to himself the privilege of resenting both. The best thing about the mountains is that they are so vast that small things like railroads and dress clothes make little impression on them. And one of the worst things about them is that traveling and living in them is so expensive. It will be a great day when a person of small or ordinary means can travel and sojourn in the White mountains for as little money as he can in Switzerland.—[The Listener, in Boston Transcript.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24, 8 A. M. For New England—Showers, followed by fair Wednesday; easterly winds.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, Aug. 24, 8 A. M. For Boston and vicinity—Clearing tonight, generally fair and warmer Wednesday; variable winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

A storm of moderate intensity has developed on the middle Atlantic coast, its centre resting near New York city this morning with a barometer of 29.68 inches. This disturbance is the cause of the prevailing rainy and disagreeable weather in the New England states, but the precipitation up to this time in our locality is merely nominal. In parts of the Middle states heavy rains have fallen, and still continue. Albany reports 1.14 inches and New York city 1.12 inches. The weather has cleared off south of Philadelphia and it is generally clear in all southern districts. Another area of unsettled conditions is central in the upper Lake region and moving this way. So far it has not affected the weather in the eastern lakes, which is clear. Generally fair weather prevails in all western districts. The temperature is without marked changes, continuing moderately low in northern districts, but with an absence of frosts. The rain area covers about all of New England and the winds are brisk northeast along the coast.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24, Wall Street.—The stock market opened strong, with Atchison at 16, Sugar 149⅝, Tobacco 91⅛, Burlington 97⅞, Rock Island 87, Louisville 61½, Leather preferred 71⅛, Manhattan 106½, Missouri Pacific 32⅛.

10—The market opened with a strong upward tendency of prices on the execution of buying orders accumulated over night. The Grangers were prominent in the dealings but the gains extended all through the list. Leather preferred showed a gain at the opening. The first quotations for Union Pacific and Atchison were slightly off, but the loss was soon recovered.

11—The sharp rise in prices invited some realizing sales during the first hour. Offerings were for the most part well absorbed and prices did not recede below last night's close. Northwestern rose to 121.

Noon—Money on call, nominally at 1½ @ 1½ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3¾ @ 4½ per cent; sterling exchange, heavy, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85½ @ ¾ for demand and $4.83¼ @ ½ for sixty days; posted rates, $4.84½ @ 85½ and $4.86½ @ 87; commercial bills, $1.82 @ ½; silver certificates, 52 @ ½; bar silver, 51½; Mexican dollars, 39½; government bonds, weak; 4s, reg., 125¼; 4s, coup., 125. The bears made a determined attack against the high-priced Industrial shares and were aided by liberal realizing orders in the Grangers and low-priced specialties. Sugar and Leather preferred yielded over a point but the secessions otherwise were small. The market subsided into dullness at the decline but showed a steadier tone at midday. The bond market was animated and very strong, with speculative issues absorbing the bulk of the dealings.

NO TENNIS TODAY.

Tomorrow, If the Weather Permits, the Final's Will be Played.

The national lawn tennis tournament at the Casino has again been interfered with by rain. Its opening was postponed by the severe storms in the early part of last week, which left the courts in a condition unfit for play, and today's rain postponed the final all-comers' match. It was not a very promising dawn which greeted the players, and the unfavorable prospect did not improve as the early morning hours advanced. By 9 o'clock rain had begun falling and continued with only slight interruptions during the morning. It was hardly a moderate rain, and the first hour settled the question of tennis play, for at the end of that time the championship court, which is none too good in wet weather, was so thoroughly soaked that several hours of sunshine will be necessary to dry it out.

And so the tennis players were forced to content themselves with discussing Monday's match and Larned's slump, and speculating on the probability of "Bob" Wrenn, the American champion, successfully defending his title and American tennis honors against either Eaves or Nisbet; for few seem to have any concern regarding the outcome of the final contest between the two. This contest between Nisbet and Eaves will be well fought and will develop good tennis; that every one admits, but there is no international rivalry to give it the spice and interest that there would have been had an American won in the semi-finals.

Wrenn is in the pink of condition and his friends are confident that he will be able to hold the championship against either Eaves or Nisbet. He is being cared for as carefully as his two brothers can do it, one of them, Evarts Wrenn, the oldest of the three, looking out for his physical condition, and the other, George, keeping him in trim on the tennis courts. "Bob" and George were out yesterday afternoon on the Casino court, playing several games, and those who saw the champion are more confident than ever that he will win when the all-important match is played, and that whoever beats him must put up the best tennis ever seen here.

The Nisbet-Eaves match is scheduled for tomorrow at 11 o'clock. The grounds this afternoon are in a very wet condition, with water standing in large pools on several of the courts. The championship court in front of the grand stand is nearly entirely covered with water, in places three and four inches deep, and it will take several hours of hot sunshine to dry it out. The wind, however, has veered to the northwest, and this will assist in putting the ground in condition. The Casino authorities expect to have the court fit for play when the all-comers' final match begins tomorrow.

The final match in the consolation singles was played yesterday, C. P. Dodge winning the prize by defeating R. I. McKittrick in two straight sets, 6-2, 6-1.

DOING RHODE ISLAND ON A BUCKBOARD.

A party of ten from Providence arrived here yesterday, on what they call a novelty and buckboard trip about the state. The party consists of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Corla, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Seymour, Mr. James McMann and Miss Lilian Lake, with a cook and a driver. They travel on a five-seated buckboard, carrying their camping outfit of four living tents and a cooking tent, and when a temporary destination is reached pitch the tents and prepare for the night. The party left Providence last Wednesday, making the first stop at Saunderstown; thence to Narragansett Pier, and then by the Jamestown ferries to Newport. They have pitched their camp in Middletown near the city line, and yesterday drove about the city in their buckboard, attracting considerable attention on Bellevue avenue. From here they will go to Tiverton and Bristol, returning to Providence after a ten days' trip. Mr. Corla, who is with the party, is connected with the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company of Providence.

POLICE NOTES.

Arthur Riley has been arrested on a charge of assaulting Ernest A. Graves and his case has been continued to Friday. R. T. Dugan has been fined $5 and costs and Dennis Murphy, alias "D." Murphy, has been sent to the county jail for a similar offence.

Richard Moran and John Hines have pleaded not guilty to a charge of revelling and their cases will be heard Friday.

Archibald McDougall has been fined $5 and costs for using improper language and $2 and costs for drunkenness; and Patrick Walsh paid $2 and costs for the privilege of getting drunk.

John Keefe, while in a liquor saloon on Long wharf, claims that he was robbed of $30. He presented two bills, one $20 and one $10, for drinks, which the bar-tender could not change. W. H. Wood was arrested for the offence and at the Police Station pleaded not guilty today and the case was set for a hearing next Friday.

Abram Simons has been fined $5 and costs for malicious mischief, having destroyed a photograph of Mary Sullivan, loaned him in order that he might have it enlarged for a crayon portrait. The woman did not like his work and the "artist" at once destroyed the photograph.

Samuel Pinker has been sentenced to the Providence county jail on a charge of embezzlement. Four weeks ago Jacob Saralowski fitted out the prisoner with a peddler's pack of trinkets, but he failed to return. Yesterday he called at the central police station to make a complaint that on the previous night his room was entered and his pocketbook, containing $28, stolen. The officer recognized him by his picture, provided by the Newport police, as the man wanted here and he was held and later brought to answer to the above-named charge. He will serve thirty days and pay all costs.

THE CARS MUST MAKE SCHEDULE TIME.

Complaint is often made by patrons of the street cars that they are obliged to wait an unreasonably long time at the junction of Spring and Touro streets for people coming from the Opera House. The complaint is well grounded, and orders have now been issued to conductors not to hold their cars in this way so as to prevent making schedule time, or the passing of cars going in the opposite direction at turnouts. Cars have been held heretofore in the hope that people coming from the plays could be accommodated without serious inconvenience to persons who were in the cars at the time. Every reasonable effort will be made to enable the Opera House attendants to take the cars, but they may sometimes be obliged to wait a few minutes before the cars come along.

TOMORROW'S POLO MATCH.

The final match for the Westchester cups for teams of an aggregate handicap of over twenty goals will be played tomorrow afternoon on the old polo field. The accident to Mr. Stanley Mortimer, who played a week ago Saturday on the Westchester team, necessitates a change from its former make-up. The teams, as at present announced, are as follows:

Country Club of Westchester, colors scarlet with white cap: No 1, J. S. Stevens, 7 goals; No 2, L. Waterbury, 7; No. 3, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., 7; back, J. E. Cowdin, 8; total, 29 goals.

Meadowbrook Club, color sky blue: No. 1, W. C. Eustis, 5; No. 2, T. Hitchcock, Jr., 8; No. 3, Harry P. Whitney, 5; back, Ben Nicoll, 8; total, 26.

From the play shown here in the last two games the Westchesters should be able to make good the handicap allowed the Meadowbrooks, and win. Their players are in better trim and in better practice. Still, there is no telling what the forwards of the Meadowbrooks will do when pushed. Both Hitchcock and Whitney have been good players, and if they once catch their stroke they can advance the ball against any team. The Westchesters are, however, very strong at back. The ground has been again rolled, and should be in good condition, if the rain will only give it a chance to dry.

SHORT SESSION OF THE DISTRICT COURT.

The district court transacted considerable business in a short time today, there being no neighborhood rows, as at several recent sessions. Tiverton occupied the place of honor so far as business went, the result of the recent pernicious activity of the police of that town, as viewed from the liquor dealers' standpoint.

Willard F. Burden was tried on two counts, for maintaining a liquor nuisance in Tiverton, was found guilty and sentenced to a fine of $20 and costs and ten days in jail on each count. He appealed.

In the case of liquors seized at Joseph Hebert's place, notice not having been served, the case was continued to August 27, but the liquors and vessels seized in the recent raids in that town, from Edward Brophy's, Philip Serpennaut's, Thomas Higginson's, Henry Touhey's and William F. Borden's, were condemned and ordered destroyed according to law.

The case against Elizabeth Campbell was continued to September 21, and those against Richard Moran and J. B. Hines to August 27, for trial. Cornelius Harrington pleaded nolo to a charge of being a common drunkard, and was released on his own recognizance until September 21.

CONTINUATION OF THE FOLEY INQUEST.

At yesterday afternoon's inquest into the death of Daniel E. Foley, in continuation of the testimony Sergeant Gillen said the last time he made his round the deceased was all right.

John Sullivan, the inmate of the cell next to Foley's, said he heard a heavy fall but not a groan, and afterwards the sergeant came in and found Foley on the floor of the cell.

Joseph Jenkins, the patrol wagon driver, helped pick Foley up and place him in another cell, and then carried him to the hospital.

Chief of Police Read saw Foley on the cell floor with blood on his face. City Physician Sauborn was called, and ordered his removal to the hospital.

Medical Examiner Stewart, in his report of the autopsy, states that he found the neck and shoulders discolored and a contusion 2 inches above the left ear, of the size of a quarter-dollar. The contusion was an ante-mortem wound. Between the bone and the dura mater of the skull there was a clot half an inch thick, four inches long and three inches wide. This clot, caused by the fracture of the skull, was what caused the death.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The regular meeting of the town council and court of probate was held yesterday afternoon. In court of probate, on petition of Emma L. Knowles, Adolphus G. Knowles was appointed administrator on the estate of Ida W. Knowles, with bond at $3,000. W. F. Caswell, Charles T. Knowles and Amos L. Peckham were appointed appraisers.

In town council the following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

P. P. and H. P. Brown, $2.50; David T. Briggs, $4.25; George A Brown, $64.18; John F. Gill, $2.50; John A. Saunders, $6.50; W. H. Gardner, $22.65; L. W. Anthony, $57.28 W. H. Gardner, $2.75; Mrs. E. F. Taylor, 50 cents; Wilton G. Ufall, $25.77; W. A. Gardner, $2.50; W. A. Champlin, $2.20; Antone Thomas, $20.00; Robert E. Sherman, $52; Barry E. Stadler, $50.

A bill for $1,063 presented by the Jamestown Light and Water Company was referred to the next meeting of the council.

A bill presented by T. A. H. Tefft was again referred to the next meeting.

A communication was received from J. P. Kohler, superintendent of ferries, in regard to taking action relative to the appointment of a harbor master. No action was taken, as the town has no authority to pass an ordinance relating to a harbor master without an act of the legislature.

A petition from Lucy Ann Tefft, praying for a sewer in West street, was indefinitely referred.

A petition from Charles E. Preston, superintendent of schools, asking for permission to use the council room for a third school until the new schoolhouse is ready for occupancy, was granted.

A communication was received from James R. Hopkins in regard to bicycling upon the sidewalks W. H. Gardner was authorized to post signs forbidding bicycling on the sidewalks of the town.

The bond of the tax collector for $15,000, with T. C. Watson and C. E. B. Carr as sureties, was received and accepted.

A petition was received from Henry T. Knowles, praying for relief from the water that runs across Bay View drive, and was referred to the supervisors of roads.

Mr. Samuel Weeden of Onarga, Ill., is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. M. Douglass.

At the Bay View: Mrs. H. P. Vincint, Washington; Alfred E. Halsall and wife and Fred C. Marvin, New York; John Crosby Neely, Chicago, J. H. Gibbons, J. L. Jayne, George R. Evans, Torpedo Station; Dr. J. L. Dawson, Charlestown; J. D. Thomson, Lafayette, Ind.; Mrs. H. F. Skinner, Boston.

ONLY TWO OR THREE APPRENTICES ESCAPED.

There was a small-sized disturbance at the Training Station Sunday when the excitement that followed the celebrated eruption of the boys from the station some months ago was for a short time repeated. On the former occasion about forty boys escaped past the sentry and roamed about Newport for awhile. Sunday, however, but two or three escaped over the causeway and these were quickly re-captured. The solitary sentry at the end of the causeway was kept busy for a few minutes, until assistance reached him, and did well to hold back as many of the boys as he did.

—Last night, after the bicyclists had left Thames street to quietude and the shadows where the electric light does not shine, the few who were on the street were somewhat surprised to hear a band wagon passing slowly down street. After a while it was seen through the semi-darkness to be a low gear, loaded with trunks of the "My Boy" company, on top of which were a couple of young fellows playing harmonicas with a good deal of vigor and evidently enjoying themselves. In the quiet, narrow street the music sounded at a distance nearly as loud as that from an orchestra.

Work Resumed at the Phenix Woolen Mills in East Greenwich.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 24.—Work at the Phenix woolen mills in East Greenwich was resumed this morning and the plant is to be operated at its full capacity. There are eighty-five looms and two hundred and fifty operatives employed. The company has enough advance orders to assure business until December 1.

Dollar wheat means a good many things beside enhanced happiness for the farmer. It means, for instance, an increase in the cost of a loaf of bread. The increase will be felt first by the bakers, but it must ultimately be felt by the consumer. The price of flour has responded at once to the rise in the price of wheat, and has gone up in proportion. The rise in the price of bread, however, will not be such as to place that article of universal consumption beyond the reach of the poor. It is marvelously cheap now, and it is likely to remain reasonably so.—Boston Herald.

Is the Best Too Good for Your Eyes?
It is a fact that the enormous increase of nervous troubles caused by disturbances of the eye is proving larger year by year. CONSTANT HEADACHES, dizziness, twitching of the eyelids and eyeballs, sharp pain in the eyes and over the forehead, pain in the neck, extending down the spinal column, epilepsy and chorea, all of which have been traced to imperfect eyes.
WHY IS IT SO?

Science and experience tells us that it is due to errors of refraction that are perfectly and beautifully cured when the eyes are most strained.

OPENING THE TRAIL AGAIN.

Many Prospectors Will be Enabled to Get Through to the Mines.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 24.—With the arrival of steamer Rosalie from Skaguay and Dyea comes the news that the town organization of Skaguay, under the leadership of A. J. McKenney, has taken definite action to open the trail. Upon the arrival of collier Willamette none of the passengers were allowed to take their baggage until the entire cargo had been placed high and dry on the beach, and then the individual holdings were segregated. It was seen that to get over the trail was impossible. A miners' meeting was convened at which it was decided to declare the trail closed. The miners put their action into immediate effect by tearing out several cross-pieces of the bridge across the Skaguay river. Then about seven hundred citizens went to work on the trail and the following day their number was increased to one thousand. They had about fifty pounds of giant powder and a small quantity of dynamite, and expected in four days after the sailing of the Rosalie to re-open the trail in a greatly improved condition. The dangerous places, where many horses have been lost, will be fixed up with scantling and the marshy portions will be corduroyed. This action will result in many prospectors getting through to the mines who would otherwise have been blockaded all winter. The condition of affairs at the lakes is about the same as reported last week.

NOT ALLOWED TO LEAVE PORT.

Vessel for the Yukon Overcrowded with Freight and Passengers.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 24.—Schooner Moonlight was stopped yesterday as she was preparing to leave the harbor in tow of tug Coleman. She had a big deckload of freight listed to port and in her hold were sixty passengers, who, Inspector Bracelt considered, had little chance of ever seeing the Yukon under the circumstances. The inspector ordered the deckload removed and suitable provision made for the safety of the passengers. Strict regulations will be enforced to prevent the overcrowding of vessels leaving for the North.

Probably Murder and Arson.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 24.—A special to the Republic from Tuscola, Ill., says: The large wholesale poultry house of this city belonging to G. M. D. Legg of Boston was burned yesterday, and after the fire the charred and blackened remains of Robert Lathrom were found, his arms and legs having been consumed. As he was one of the principal witnesses against William Appleton of Arcola for the killing of Scott Schwartz, it is believed that Lathrom was murdered and the building set on fire to conceal the crime.

WHAT IS EXTRAVAGANCE?

Economy in expenditure is well, but it may be carried to the extreme of a vice injurious to society. If every American spent only the money requisite to keep soul and body together, saving the rest, our complex civilization would sink to the simplicity of barbarism. It exists and progresses because men spend their money to gratify an increasing variety of artificial wants created by their tastes and ambitions. Thus the multiform industry of our civilization is made possible. When men generally begin to practice sharp economy, depression follows. The increased economy decreases the demand for a multitude of articles in whose production labor is engaged, and mechanics and other workmen are thrown out of employment, and they, in their turn, are compelled to refrain from buying because they are without money with which to buy.

Thus the depression is extended to all departments of trade, industry, and production. If the people of this country reduce their expenditures on an average by only five per cent there is an aggregate loss to business vast enough to send it down from prosperity to depression. The "extravagance" of our very rich men has been talked about loudly during recent years, but it does not exist; it has never existed. Extravagance is relative only. An expenditure of $500 a year may be extravagance for one man, and of $500,000 a year prudent restraint in another. The truth is that relatively to their incomes the expenditures of the very rich men in America are much less than of men of corresponding incomes in Europe, and more especially England; but such as our expenditures were during the last four years our "extravagance" helped materially to check depression by causing a large demand for industry which otherwise would have been unemployed.

So it has been throughout our society; the expenditures of the people who were receiving incomes gave incomes to other people, who else would have been unable to make their living. One of the evils of hard times, as they are called, is that they breed a spirit of unnecessary economy, which, in the aggregate, lessens demand enormously, with great consequent distress. In such times humanity and even enlightened self-interest dictate that people should not economize unnecessarily.—[New York Sun.

A LOSING FIGHT.

Individuals seeking federal office, but so far without success, seem to find a sort of solace in denunciation of the civil service law. Their view, being wholly selfish, is therefore short-sighted. One might suppose, from their deliverances, that a repeal of the law would open the way to a place for everybody asking recognition. But of course it would not. It would simply aggravate the difficulty. Disappointments in the palmy days of the spoils system were more numerous than they now are. Then the disappointed railed at the bosses and the President. Now they rail at the civil service law. Repeal the law, increase the size of the scramble, and the turn of the bosses for blame would come again.

Some of the politicians are seeking the disappointed ones. Not with the idea, however, of having their own bosses [illegible] again. They have no idea that the civil service law can be repealed. Their experience has taught them [illegible] value, but by [illegible] the law they [illegible] if the law [illegible] it is a safe game for them to play.

One has only to look about him to see the dangers to a party [illegible] from the spoils of office [illegible]. The factional fighting among the Republicans in Maryland [illegible] largely [illegible]. The local leaders have been unable to divide it up in a satisfactory way. The situation would be worse if the places were more numerous. If the old system were revived, it is bad enough as it is. If Maryland and Kentucky are lost to the cause of sound money this year, the disaster will be attributable largely to the wrangling over patronage. This is clear as daylight. In the face of it, can any party leader seriously advocate an increase of the difficulty? May he be considered a wise leader who would start two fights where one is now in progress? That, and nothing else, would be the inevitable result of the repeal, or even the unfriendly amending, of the civil service law.

The talk about "an office-holding oligarchy" is nothing but campaign fustian. It takes no serious hold of serious people. If such a system existed, and were as bad as painted, it yet would not be as bad as "an office-seeking oligarchy." For such the old system was. Thousands joined in the scramble, but only a few pulled the wires, and for their own personal ends and advantage distributed the favors.—[Washington Star.

BATHING IN PUBLIC.

The etiquette of bathing is again under public discussion. The authorities of a leading seaside resort have taken action for the regulation of public bathing, or of the conduct of the bathers. They have decreed that people shall not go about the streets and other public places promiscuously, clad only in the scanty garments which they wear while bathing in the surf. Whereupon there is a chorus of mingled indignation and derision. The authorities are denounced on the one hand for tyrannically interfering with the liberties of the individual, and are ridiculed on the other for being "Puritanical" and "prudish." It may be said, however, without hesitation, that they are entirely right. The looseness of manners in public bathing at some seashore resorts in this country has long been scandalous. For men and women, of all ages and conditions of life, friends and strangers together, to attire themselves in the scantiest of apparel, and jostle and tumble about in the surf in the most intimate physical contact, under the eyes of throngs of spectators, is sufficiently repugnant to both good morals and good manners. For them, in the same attire, without even the pretext of bathing, to sprawl and roll about on the dry sand of the beach together in all sorts of postures and embraces is little short of revolting.

But that is not, after all, the worst of it. For while such conduct is confined to the beach people of modest instincts can shun that place as they would any other where indecency was being paraded. The culminating offence is when the bathers, or alleged bathers, take to exhibiting themselves all over town. They don their scanty raiment in their cottages or hotels and then lounge about the hotel parlors and piazzas, promenade the avenues, enter ice-cream saloons and other places of public resort, and thus spend perhaps half the day exhibiting themselves and obtruding themselves upon the sight of the public, in a state of semi-nudity which, displayed upon the stage of a variety theatre, would call for prompt intervention of the police. Then, perhaps, they lounge back home and put on decent clothing, without ever going near the water. Or perhaps they go into the surf for a while, and then saunter back home through the crowded streets, clad only in their dripping, clinging bathing suits, an offence to cleanliness and an insult to decency.

Such practices have been notorious for years at more than one resort. They have been participated in, no doubt, by many pure-minded but thoughtless people. But it is time they were abolished, so far as it is in the power of municipal law and public opinion to abolish them. Public bathing in the surf is all right. But the bathers should be decently clad and should deport themselves decently, and they should remember, moreover, that the place to wear a bathing suit is in the bath and nowhere else.—[New York Tribune.

HOODLUMS AND THE LAW.

The recent outbreaks of rural crime in New England have drawn attention sharply to the increasing class of lawless persons who infest country towns. Places where there is no poverty, no open vice, no slums, no temptations to robbery, and no examples of profligacy, harbor worthless loafers, who at any time may become dangerous criminals. Professor Charles Eliot Norton the other day discussed the village hoodlum at a dinner, and his remarks have led to many comments and attempts to account for this plague in the body of a virtuous community. The chief of the state police of Massachusetts says that the trouble is with parents, who are so lax in bringing up their children that they are lawless loafers from their youth up. The superintendent of the Boston police force thinks that the hoodlums come from lack of punishment for disorderly conduct. The chief of the bureau of criminal investigation of the Boston police is to some extent a fatalist. He believes that criminals are criminals because the tendency is in them from the beginning, and is bound to come out.

All these views have truth in them. Some children and some men are bad by nature, and neither home nor courts can make them good. Parents are careless, and let their children develop bad habits. But the principal cause of village hoodlumism is doubtless the easygoing lack of respect for law on the part of the rural community. This tolerance of license in the name of liberty and good nature is largely responsible for parental laxness as well as police laxness, and so doubly contributes to making loafers, first, by letting them develop, and then by letting them flourish. In the country village, where everybody knows everybody else, it is not popular for an officer to be too particular about forms. The constable is elected by his neighbors, and the last thing he wants to do is to make himself disagreeable to any of them. If he attempts to be too strict he will earn the enmity of those whose path he crosses without being in the least sure of the support of other people. After New York city gave an illustration of organized and vociferous opposition to the police board when that body attempted simply to obey the plain mandate of the law concerning liquor-selling, it is not to be wondered at that the inhabitants of a small village should make it unpleasant for an officer whom they had known from boyhood and called by his first name if he should try to prevent the grocer from filling whiskey bottles for his neighbors, or be disagreeable to the blacksmith's son for going into the farmer's peach orchard, or try to enforce fussy rules against bicycles on the village sidewalks. The country justice and the country constable [illegible] feel themselves being more dependent in every case of petty misdemeanor, even when, as is too often the case, they are not in full sympathy with the local spirit of toleration.

In fact, the spirit which makes lynching possible does not differ in kind from that which protects the hoodlum. It is the notion that law is something which is properly subject to popular feeling. That sentiment compels the officer to be blind to petty crime and let his neighbors take savage vengeance for a great crime. The law-respecting system is honored by time and tradition, and it is perhaps heretical to question its perfect working. Probably it works all right where the constituency is over [illegible] law-respecting, but it apparently has its weakness where the community is tolerant of lawlessness. It may be said that if each village is satisfied [illegible] of anybody else, but that [illegible]. The preservation of order and the suppression of schools of crime are the concern of the whole country. Theoretically, the police power belongs to the state, and is only delegated to the separate communities. If they cannot exercise their delegated power in accordance with the laws of the state and the interest of its inhabitants as a whole, it may some day be necessary to put that power beyond the paralyzing influence of good-natured or selfish toleration of the law-breaking of neighbors.—[New York Tribune.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

For those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the best grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

STRENGTH FROM FOOD.

BUT THE FOOD MUST BE DIGESTED.

There is no way to get strong without food. Food is the strength maker.

Just enough food, properly digested, makes the strong and healthy man or woman. Too much, too little, or even the right quantity, not digested, will make anybody weak.

The beginning of all sickness is weakness. The beginning of all weakness is indigestion. So to keep strong, look after your digestion. That is the most important point of all.

When your food ferments in your stomach and forms gas, causes dizziness, nausea, bad taste, sick headache, full feeling, nervousness, irritability, etc., you have indigestion. You are losing a part of your life. Every hour you are sick causes a loss of strength.

The way to cure it is to take Shaker Digestive Cordial. A few doses will relieve. If you take it long enough you will regain the strength you have lost.

Shaker Digestive Cordial is made from herbs and plants by the Shakers of Mount Lebanon. It contains very strong digestive tonic properties. It creates strength. It makes your food make you strong and bright and healthy. It clears your complexion and strengthens your body against disease. If you want to get strong and well, try a bottle.

Sold by all druggists at 10, 25, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle.

NEWPORT--PAST AND PRESENT.

Changes and Development of the Town in Recent Ye rs.

Aquidneck—Isle of Peace—is the Indian name of Newport Island, that little piece of land some thirteen miles long, which almost closes the eastern part of Narragansett bay. The misty airs blown in from the neighboring ocean and warmed by the gulf stream, which sweeps in a great curve almost within two hundred miles of the coast directly south of Newport, and which airs give the land and waters, especially in summer, a marvelous softness and charm—was probably the reason for the Indian title. The three centuries which have rolled away since the Indian was first visited by white men on Newport Island, to seen after part from his old hunting-ground, have brought, as elsewhere in America, and especially along the Atlantic seacoast, great changes to Newport Island.

It must be confessed that the visitor within Newport gates in this present year of grace, who, knowing from experience of the social conditions which govern the life of the successors of the red man, and who looks upon the social panorama as it unfolds itself before him, would hardly consider the Indian title as appropriate to the Isle of Aquidneck today. For the sons and daughters of men who have chosen to make Newport the most fashionable of American summer resorts and the most noted of American watering-places all over the world, have not carried out their intentions and ambitions without a certain friction and controversies, the echoes of which rarely reach the outside world. A Catholic divine, after a visit to Newport in the season, once wittily said that Newport differed from Protestantism only in that the former was a collection of warring sets, rather than sects. Be this as it may, the social storms and breezes which constantly agitate the isle where every prospect pleases cannot affect the onward movement of Newport or dim to any extent its reputation as the most fashionable and exclusive summer resort of the country.

This brief sketch of Newport has to deal more with its natural than its social life, and has for its subject the development of the place during recent years * * * It is a far cry indeed from the rough, peaked-roofed cabin where the great idealist wrote the immortal line, "Westward the star of empire takes its way," to the gray stone mansion overlooking the same seas and filled, from cellar to ceiling, with the rarest and richest art products of both the Old and New World, from whose terraces a modern American Croesus can watch the same everlasting thunder of the long Atlantic swell which the good Bishop Berkeley contemplated years before. Not as great, perhaps, but still interesting, is the contrast between the fine old country mansion of Vaucluse, about two miles from Newport, on the western shore of the island, and around which cluster so many memories, to the graceful modern villa of New York's well-known patron of art, Mr. Henry G. Marquand. There are many other old houses in and around Newport which might also be illustrated to carry out this story of contrast and changes which the years bring. But Vaucluse and the Bishop Berkeley house have an individual historical interest which make them, while thoroughly typical of old Newport days, particularly interesting.

The present generation of men and women who pass the summer days away at Newport in the pursuit of pleasure, in golfing and the majority of the visitors who resort there to look on at the passing show and to contemplate the picture of perhaps the best-ordered and appointed summer life in the world, have probably little idea that the charms and advantages of Newport as a summer resort were known and appreciated a hundred years ago by the people who of all in this country at the time certainly by tradition, education and experience, knew best how to enjoy and appreciate the luxuries of life. Even before the Revolution some of the old families of Charleston and Savannah, of Richmond and Wilmington, were accustomed in late June or early July of each returning summer to set sail on the small brigs or schooners, in many instances their own property, which traded between the Southern ports and the little Rhode Island town, and with their servants, their horses, and, last but not least, their famous old sherries, ports, and madeiras, to pass the heated period of the year on the cool shores of Newport Island. They found there, did these men and women of the old school, an atmosphere of social refinement, of quiet, well-ordered life—a town "hallowed by pure lives and peaceful deaths," with which they were thoroughly inaccord, and to this town and to its people they became much attached; while between them there grew closer relations still, for there were frequent inter-marriages between the sons and daughters of these old Southerners and those of the old Rhode Island families. Mr. Ward McAllister, in his curious, but not uninteresting and in some ways valuable, contribution to the social history of New York, "Society as I Have Found It," dilated, it will be remembered, at considerable length on the relations of Southern cities and Newport up to the time of the civil war. Himself a member of an old Georgia family, his boyhood summers were spent at Newport, and his reminiscences of the old life there were revelations to many of the so-called summer residents of the place today.

It is not perhaps generally known that Newport was at one time a commercial port of importance, and that the amount of tonnage which annually entered and left her harbor and her imports and exports exceeded those of New York. Then were the halcyon business days of Newport—then did her wharves groan with the freight heaped upon them, for the most part composed of the fruits, the sugar, the coffee, tobacco, and, let it be whispered, the rum, of the West Indies and the nearer South American shores. If the records of old Newport are correct, and no one has yet impeached their accuracy, it would appear that occasionally a long, low, and rakish schooner would drop her anchor in Newport harbor and would proceed to disembark her passengers, who were hardly of a society color, and whose home was the west coast of Africa. In other words, there were other slaves brought to Newport in old days and from thence distributed through New England than those which accompanied the wealthy merchants of Charleston and Savannah as family servants on their annual summer outing. But these literal and metaphorical black spots on the page of Newport's history were but a concomitant of the times, and when the abolitionists, the first to unfurl the banner of universal freedom in America, had begun their work, some of their chief supporters were to be found among the cultivated and intelligent people of Newport.

The town, founded early in the seventeenth century, grew rapidly after 1740, and so was one of the most desired prizes by the British in the Revolutionary war. The part that Newport played in this war is familiar to all students of American history. Her harbor and the surrounding waters were the scene of many a spirited naval skirmish, and there the great fleet of Admiral De Grasse assembled before it sailed for Yorktown. The Revolution, while it checked the material progress of Newport, in no way dimmed the social life of the place. The town was filled almost continuously with officers of the British fleets and later with those of the French. Bret Harte has immortalized the visit of Admiral Rochambeau to Newport in his moving poem of the old haunted house near the harbor, and up to within a few years there were old ladies still living in Newport who could recall the gaities of the time when the French fleet made it its headquarters. For twenty years after the Revolution Newport still enjoyed commercial prominence, but then its fortunes began slowly to decline, and from 1830 to 1860 it passed through a long period of business depression. Its trade, even with the West Indies, had gradually slipped away to Boston and New York, and only the whaling industry and the mackerel and cod fisheries supplied the needs of its citizens. Then came the breaking of that fashionable wave which, almost imperceptible at first, grew gradually in extent and volume till it brought prosperity back to the place. The breaking out of the civil war found Saratoga, Long Branch, and, perhaps, Sharon Springs and the White mountains the chief and only watering places or summer resorts of wealthy New Yorkers, and, in fact, of the wealthy residents of all the larger American cities. They were accustomed to resort to Long Branch for the heated days of July and to Saratoga and the White mountains for the August period. There had grown up rows of stately villas along the east bank of the Hudson and on the wooded heights of Staten Island and in near Westchester county. A few families who had tried Newport came back enthusiastic as to its climate and its healthfulness; but their reports had little credit, and for some years little influence. When the war broke out, however, a general feeling of uneasiness, especially after the first reverse of Bull Run of the Northern arms, led to a desertion for one summer by other families of influence of their Hudson river or Staten Island homes and a trial of Newport. There were no villas in these days, either on the cliffs or along the harbor, and Bellevue avenue was hardly more than a country road. The Ocean House and a few hospitable old mansions accommodated these visitors, and this was all. A summer or two more and things changed, and Newport began to take her place among American summer resorts.—[James B. Townsend, in New York Times.

THE EXPOSITION OF 1900.

For many months, and in one or two cases for over a year and a half, the countries of the Old World have, almost without exception, taken action on this question of the part they mean to play at the international exhibition which closes the century. In most instances large appropriations have been voted, committees appointed, and commissioners named. In a few others the invitation has been accepted and a temporary delegate in Paris designated with the mission to put himself in direct communication with the exhibition authorities.

In a general way prompt and early action on the part of foreign governments is always advisable in the matter of international exhibitions. But it is especially necessary in this instance, for in 1900 the demands for space must be made separately for each group, whereas in almost all of the preceding exhibitions a nation could retain a single plot of space for its whole exhibit.

European countries and several in South America and Asia are already engaged in selecting their allotments. If we of the United States let many more months slip by without taking any action, our would-be exhibitors of the eleventh hour will not only find all the "best places" given away, but will be chagrined to learn, as has been our experience at more than one former exhibition, that they cannot find even "standing room." What a cry will then go up—the old cry that was heard in 1867, 1878, and 1889 against the future United States Commission! whereas the blame should be laid at the door of Congress and American public opinion, which are slumbering over this question of our participation at Paris in 1900, while all Europe and most of the rest of the civilized world are up and doing.—[Theodore Stanton, in September Lippincott's.

THE MUENCHINGER—KING COTTAGE.

The Muenchinger-King cottage, so favorably known to a select patronage, and which deserves all the praises every one is giving it, was an unqualified success from its very inception, being now considered the ne plus ultra of fashionable establishments. Its location is most excellent, and then again its general appearance both within and without is refined and aristocratic to a degree. Palms and hydrangeas dot the lawn in front of an ample piazza nicely shaded by awnings from the midday sun. I never heard the name boarding-house applied to it any more than one would think of calling a rose a weed. The house impresses one as being the abode of one large congenial family. The management studies to please, and has been rewarded by a large clientele who more than fill the house summers and who make a good winter business, and they are people, too, who seem to appreciate the service of white-capped attendants, the luxury of monogrammed napkins, and a superb cuisine.—[Lyford, in Hotel Gazette.

THE TURKISH POLICY IN CRETE.

A correspondent writing to the London Times from Canea explains the present Turkish policy in Crete and its consequences. He says that Djevad Pasha is making use of all his experience as former vali of the island to render himself popular, chiefly with the Christian element, by resorting to effusive declarations of good intentions, by affording the Christians all kinds of facilities, and even by offering money gifts to such popular institutions as convents, Christian goods and products, far from being any longer trampled under foot, finding now eager purchasers among the Mohammedan population, and every facility is afforded to the Christian peasants of finding their way into the town. The hitherto irreconcilable Mohammedans have adopted a decidedly friendly attitude towards their Christian fellow-countrymen, and show a disposition to settle down in peace with them. The insurgents, alarmed at these manoeuvres, have adopted stringent measures against Christian peasants seeking commercial intercourse with Mohammedans. Country people trying to cross the neutral zone and enter the town have been fired at, and in some cases have lost their goods, or even their beasts of burden. The situation, therefore, is becoming more and more complicated. Meanwhile, the newly elected general assembly, from one cause or another, is in process of gradual dissolution. The deputies of Kydonia, the district around Canea, assembled the other day and voted in favor of autonomy as the only way out of their troubles, but their example has not been followed.

COME TO STAY.

And Newport Extends a Glad Welcome.

Because it stops
Sniffing,
Humming,
Hawking,
Gagging,
Excessive sneezing
And tickling in the throat.
California Catarrh Cure does it.
Sweetens the foul breath.
Cures the pain across the eyes
And in the back of the head,
Stops dropping into the throat,
Cures scabs in the nose,
Keeps the nose always clear,
And absolutely cures the worst cases of chronic catarrh.

California Catarrh Cure has a firm admirer in Mr. J. F. Reagan, 663 Thames street. Mr. Reagan has been greatly benefited by the use of this wonderful medicine, and says: "I had the catarrh so that it was quite troublesome. My head and throat were badly stuffed up in the morning, my eyes troubled me, and I caught cold easily. I got a bottle of California Catarrh Cure at Blumenkranz's Pharmacy, and the results have been very satisfactory. I am now comparatively free from all these troubles. I don't catch cold, my head and throat are free and clear in the morning, and in all ways it has benefited me."

This is what your own townsman says of California Catarrh Cure. Sold by all dealers; 50 cents; three times as much for one dollar. Nothing else is "as good" no matter who says so; for nothing else cures so quickly and effectively.

To avoid Hay Fever, begin to use C. C. C. now; used properly, it will entirely prevent the malady in its season. It is also invaluable in checking and relieving summer colds.

Today's Games.

Newport at Brockton, Pawtucket at New Bedford, Fall River at Taunton.

Pawtucket, 9; Newport, 8 (thirteen innings.)

Newport and Pawtucket were billed to play two games on Freebody Park yesterday afternoon, but they played only one, and that was of such a character that for the interests of decent ball it had very much better not been played. While many good plays were made and at times good ball was seen, as a whole a good cat and dog fight would have been as near the rules of base ball, and would not have been so disgusting, for the spectators would have had an opportunity to see it without the interposition of the umpire. Newport opened with two runs, on two singles, a sacrifice and a putout. Pawtucket came back with four, on three hits, two bases on balls and three errors. Newport evened in the second on three hits, a base on balls and three errors. Pawtucket responded with two, on an error, a steal and two hits. Newport made another in the third on a hit, two putouts and an error. Both scored in the sixth, Newport on two doubles, a putout and and error, and Pawtucket on Knorr's home run, three hits and an error. Then both sides had a Donnybrook fair sort of a time until the last half of the thirteenth inning, when with one out Beaumont, French and Battam hit safely and the visitors had scored the winning run. Some time before this it had become too dark to play, and no attempt was made to begin the second game.

There were some good bits of fielding scattered between the kicks and growls and the jeers of the crowd at the umpiring. For Pawtucket, Weisbecker covered a great deal of territory and caught some apparently safe hits, Beaumont caught a very good game and after a few failures threw well, and B. Beaumont saved some bad throws. For Newport, Mills played a star game at second, Grant caught and threw well, and Kelley, Bean and Gilbert did good fielding.

Bean was put out of the game in the seventh and Dinsmore took his place, fielding well but proving not so good as Bean at the bat. Both pitchers were hit hard and often, and the errors generally came at such times as would help the scoring. Both were quite effective toward the end. The score follows:

New Bedford, 1; Taunton, 0.

The Taunton team were "Goosed" yesterday by Anderson's excellent pitching and the perfect support. The New Bedfords won by bunching hits in two innings. The features were the fielding of Tighe and the great back stopping and throwing of Connie Murphy. Anderson had Irwin's team completely at his mercy, and not a Taunton man reached third base. The New Bedfords worked as one man, and not an error was made. Attendance, 200.

Notes.

Yesterday's game was the noisiest ever played in Newport.

The Brockton Times says of Saturday's game "The sun in left was very troublesome. Pickett suffered the worst, but it served as a very noticeable check on Nadeau's work." This explains Pickett's two errors.

The Brockton Enterprise says: "The Brockton infielders' friends used to cry it broke up their throwing because they had to figure to get the ball just right to Kraig. Now they've got a man who can get the ball almost anywhere within human reach, and their throwing is getting worse and worse."

The New England League season will end September 11. There is only two weeks' play after this week.

Boston has won seven more games and lost one less than the Baltimore club in the National League contest. Captain Anson of the Chicagoes says: "The Bostons will most likely win out, and strictly on their merits. Baltimore will be second, and New York and Cincinnati will fight it out for third."

Fox of the Holy Cross team is playing second baseman for the Washingtons of the National League, and is evidently making himself very popular. The Star says: "The new man, Fox, may not be a four hundred hitter or a star fielder, but he plays ball the best he knows how all the time, and it is refreshing to see such a man covering second base."

SOCIETY'S GAY ROUND.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor held a reception on board their steam yacht Nourmahal yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. A large party accepted the invitation, not only to visit the yacht but to enjoy the musical treat provided. There was among the attractions a luncheon, with music by the Hungarian orchestra.

Hon. Chauncey M. Depew gave a dinner at No. 4 Pinard cottage last night, his guests being Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Sloane, Hon. Perry Belmont, Miss Bight, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. C. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Wysong, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Rogers, Mrs. Belle Neilsen, Miss Paulding, Mr. John Nicholas Brown and Mr. James Otis. The decorations were allamandas.

Mr. J. J. Van Alen gave a dinner at "Wakehurst" yesterday, and music was furnished by the Neapolitan quartet.

Mr. R. L. Winthrop, Mr. Herbert C. Pell and Mr. Samuel Colman also entertained at dinner.

Mrs. Lorillard Spencer gave a luncheon yesterday.

Mr. Ralph Walter and Mr. Charles C. Hoare, who have been spending a week here, gave a luncheon at the tea-room on Bellevue avenue yesterday prior to their departure for Canada, where they will join the Earl of Aberdeen on a hunting trip.

Mrs. Astor gave a luncheon at "Beechwood" today.

Mrs. David King will give a dance in honor of her daughter tonight, and Mrs. C. S. Brice will give tomorrow night a ball and dinner dance which will be one of the principal social events of the season. Dinner will be provided in a mammoth tent, seventy by forty feet in size, attached to the villa. Plates will be set for two hundred persons.

"MY BOYS."

It was not a large audience that assembled at the Opera House last evening to see George Richards and Eugene Canfield in a new play, written for them by William Gill and called "My Boys," but it was enthusiastic and hearty in its recognition of the many amusing complications in the comedy, the good acting and singing, and the clever work of all in the cast. The company is a good one, headed by Richards and Canfield, who have made themselves well known in the world of comedy by their clever work in Charles H. Hoyt's plays. They had congenial parts in Silas Plummer, the father of "My Boys," and Sam Plummer, his youngest son. The other actors were Madison Corey, George H. Ricketts, George E. Martin, G. Herbert Leonard, Florence Earle, Harriet Willard, Helen August, Mlle. Vera Dore, Sallie Stembler and Mattie Keene. The musical annex, as the author calls it, includes songs by Mlle. Dore, Miss Mattie Keene, Miss Sallie Stembler, Richards and Canfield and George E. Martin.

A PRETTY HOP.

It was a pretty hop at the Casino last night, well attended by spectators and fairly well by dancers, but other events of a social nature kept many away.

Miss Taylor wore lavender silk; Mrs. J. R. Drexel, pale yellow silk; Miss Dulles, yellow silk; Miss Davies, black silk; Mrs. David King, black silk; Miss Dreer, striped silk; Miss King, pink satin; Miss Hofman, yellow silk; Miss C. O. Jones, black satin, and Miss Grant, black silk.

Others present were Milton Barger, H. P. Eldridge, C. Gibson, Potter Palmer, Jr., F. A. Plummer, LeGrand d'Hauteville, Miss Pierson, J. F. Pierson, Jr., Miss Susan Mills, Mrs. J. A. Swan, R. R. Remington, Fred M. Davies, W. H. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. C. Taylor, J. R. Drexel, Mrs. Dulles, W. C. Dulles, E. N. Tailer, W. B. Cutting, Jr., S. Perles, W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Willing Spencer, J. Davis, R. Gerry and R. S. Rogers.

THIS TIME THE VAQUERO WON.

Mr. Van Winkle Offers Again the Cup He Won Saturday.

Yesterday, for the second time, the thirty-footers raced for the cup offered by Mr. A. S. Van Winkle, owner of the Esperanza, and it was won by the Vaquero III, defeating a fleet of ten boats. Saturday the boats raced at Bristol for the same trophy, it being won by Mr. Van Winkle himself.

Yesterday the wind was from the northeast, and it was decided that the course would be to Dyer's Island and return by the way of Jamestown. The start was made at 3:22, the Esperanza being the first to cross with the Mai bringing up the rear fifty seconds behind the gun. All the boats were on the starboard tack, and after the Jamestown mark had been turned it was a beat to Dyer's Island. In the windward work the Vaquero III took the lead, not to be headed off again in the race. The Veda turned the mark third, but on the run down the bay she was covered and passed by the Wawa.

It was a pretty sight to see the procession down the bay and several yachts followed the boats over the course. At Rose Island, on the return, the Mai was so far astern that she dropped out of the race and made a short cut for home.

The official time was as follows:

Boat.	Owner.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
Vaquero III	H. B. Duryea	6:01:01	2:39:01
Dorothy II	H. P. Whitney	6:02:18	2:40:18
Wawa	J. A. Stillman	6:03:07	2:41:07
Veda	C. Vanderbilt, Jr.	6:04:10	2:42:10
Carolina	P. Jones	6:05:06	2:43:06
Puck	E. D. Morgan	6:05:11	2:43:11
Musme	J. McDonough	6:06:27	2:44:27
Hera	R. N. Ellis	6:06:41	2:44:41
Esperanza	A. S. Van Winkle	6:07:12	2:45:12
Mai	O. G. Jennings	Did not finish.

Notes.

Mrs. E. D. Morgan sailed in the Puck and Mrs. Jennings in the Mai.

Mr. Pembroke Jones sailed the Carolina yesterday for the first time in Newport waters.

Tomorrow the yachts will race for the cup offered by Mrs. E. D. Morgan.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Young and Miss Young of Newton Centre, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Smith of New York, Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson, L. W. Goldy and Miss Goldy of Camden, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. James Chadwick of Fall River are at The New Cliffs Hotel.

—A Washington despatch says that gunboat Newport, which was to go into commission September 15, will not be ready until October 5. She will be commissioned at Portsmouth, N. H., and will then go to the Navy Academy to take the place of the Bancroft as a training ship for the naval cadets.

—Councilman and Mrs. Francis M. Sisson have met with a sad loss in the death of their oldest child, a daughter ten years old, who died suddenly Sunday after an operation for the removal of an affection of the throat. Bessie Marian was a bright, active girl, of a disposition which endeared her not only to her parents but to all who knew her, and her sudden death is mourned by a large circle of friends, who have given evidence of their love by many floral tributes.

DEATH OF REV. J. W. WILLETT.

Rev. John W. Willett, a well-known minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, died Monday in Taunton, after a long illness, at the age of seventy-three years. He joined the Providence, now the New England Southern, conference in 1851, and was one of its oldest members at the time of his death. He filled many important appointments in southern Massachusetts and in this state, including churches in Providence, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, Westerly and Middletown. He was for four years presiding elder of the New Bedford district, and was well known in this city and vicinity.

CAPTAIN MAHAN'S "TWENTIETH-CENTURY OUTLOOK."

In the September Harper's Captain A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., retired, has an article entitled "A Twentieth-Century Outlook," in which he expresses a belief that the United States is to be a factor in the future conflicts of a militant Christendom. He takes a sweeping glance up the coming centuries and forecasts a time when the hordes of semi-barbaric Asiatics will bear much the same relationship to European civilization that the ancient barbarians of the north bore to Rome. In such an event the vaunted beneficence of arbitration will be unavailing, and our only safety will lie in resistance by sea and land. In brief, Captain Mahan believes that our propinquity to the Orient even more than our interest in European affairs will force us at no very distant day to take a leading part in those great movements which shape the destinies of nations.

In the October number Captain Mahan will write of "The Strategic Features of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea" in which he will discuss the advantages which Cuba possesses over Jamaica and other neighboring islands as a basis of naval operations for the protection of the mouth of the Mississippi, and of the proposed channel of communication through the isthmus with our ports on the Pacific.

TONIGHT'S BAND CONCERT.

The Newport band will give another of its park concerts on Touro Park this evening, and Bandmaster Appelles has arranged an excellent program, the features of which will be a cornet solo, Sullivan's "Lost Chord," by Mr. Harry Howard; a descriptive piece by Reeves, illustrating "Episodes in a Policeman's Life," and a march by Mr. Appelles dedicated to the New York Yacht Club, with buglers from the marine corps at the Training Station and Newport Artillery under the direction of Bugle Master Charles Hall. The other selections are a march, "General Sheridan," by Appelles; overture, "Morning, Noon and Night," by Suppe; selections from the opera "Isle of Champagne," Reminiscences of Wagner; the intermezzo from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana;" Sousa's latest march, "Stars and Stripes Forever," a Handel largo, with baritone obligato by Mr. Joseph T. Howard, and "Old Time Minstrels."
